

The General Store

SS-EP-3.3.2 Students will explain different ways that people acquire goods and services.

Early settlers often traded goods with each other and Native Americans. There were a few general stores in the settlements that offered goods to buy. These early stores were very different from the stores we know now.

Instructions: Using complete sentences:

A. Write how the General store is different compared to the grocery store where you and your family shop.

B. How are they the same?
